A FANTASY. BY P. W. M.

'Tis told somewhere in Eastern story, That those who love once bloomed as flowers

On the same stem, smid the glory Of Eden's green and fragrant bowers. And that, though parted here by Fate,

Yet when the glow of life has ended, Each soul again shall find its mate, And in one bloom again be biended.

If this be true, how sweet the vision Which Fancy sometimes weaves for me, That thou, amid those bowers elysian, My levely flower-mate will be ; And, oh ! how oft, when time and distance

Perchance, may part thee from my side, Will I repine for that existence Where Fate can ne'er our lives divide.

It is no longer proper to say of a lady that she is ressed in the "height of fashion." The phrase now in the breadth of fashion." "I m afraid I shall come to want." said an old lady to a young gentleman. "I have come to want already," was the reply; "I want your daughter." The old lady opened her eyes.

"Sally," said a fellow to a girl who had red hair, "keep away from me, or you will set me afire." "No danger of that," was the answer, "you are too green

"A pretty pair of eyes are the best mirrors to shave y." "Yes," said a bachelor on reading the above, many a man has been shaved by them." "Sam, why don't you talk to your massa, and tell um to lay up his treasure in heaven?"

How to FRIGHTEN Dogs.—With reference to the device adopted by Ulysses to frighten the dogs of Ithaca, and still in use in Greece, I may state that I have seen a Malay at Singapore squat down with his back towards a strange dog, and look at him from between his legs. In this instance the experiment proved successful, as the brute scampered off in a fright, looking tack now and then to see what sort of a monster it was which carried its head in that unwonted place. But I have heard that once a Malay, playing the trick before an English bull-dog, was seized hold of by "bully."—Notes and Queries.

"He has just been sent to me from Smyrna," said Humboldt; "he is very listless and unconcerned in his manner." Just then the chameleon opened one of his long, tubular eyes, and looked up at us. "A peculiarity of this animal," he continued, "is its power of looking in different directions at the same time. He can turn one eye toward heaven, while the other inspects the earth. REV. DR. NOTT OF UNION COLLEGE.—A correspondent of one of the daily papers, says:—"Dr. Nott is now nearly eighty-seven years of age, and has been President of Union College since 1804, when he succeeded Jonathan Maxcy, who filled the post two years. He has graduated nearly four thousand young men, and has contributed more to the cause of educations and the course of the cause of educations are at the cause of educations tion than any other man in the United States. He still enjoys pretty good health, and is doubtless des-tined to do even more yet in the noble and patriotic work in which he has been engaged for more than half a century."

It does not till our fields, GOVERNMENT. ses, weave the ties which bind us to our families, we disinterestedness to the heart, or energy to the in elect and will. All our great interests are left to or seives; and governments, that have interfered with them have obstructed, much more than advanced them. For example, they have taken religion into their keeping only to disfigure it. So education, in their hands, has become propagator of servile maxims, and an upholder of antiquated errors. In like men for they have paralyzed trade by their nursing care, and multiplied poverty by their expedients for relief. Government has almost been a barrier against which intellect has had to struggle; and society has made its chief progress by the minds of private individuals, who have outstripped their rulers, and gradually shamed them into truth and wisdom.—Channing. re disinterestedness to the heart, or energy

Blessed be the hand which prepares a rleasure for a child: for there is no saying where and when it may again bloom forth. Does not almost everybody remember some kind-hearted man who showed him a remember some kind-hearted man who showed him a kindness in the quiet days of his childhood? The writer of this recollects himself at this moment, as a barefooted lad, standing at the wooden fence of a poor little garden in his native village; with longing eyes he gazed on the flowers which were blooming there quietly in the brightness of a Sunday morning. The possessor of the garden came forth from his little cottage—he was a wood-cutter by trade—and come into his garden to gather a flower to stick in his coat, when he went to church. He saw the boy, and breaking off the most beautiful of his carnations—it was streaked with red and white—gave it to him. Neither straked with red and white—gave it to him. Neither the giver nor the receiver spoke one word; and with bounding steps the boy ran home; and now, here at a vast distance from that home, after so many events of so many years, the feeling of gratitude which agitated the breast of that boy expresses itself on paper. The carnation is long since withered, but it now blooms afresh.—Douglass Jerrold.

Within a very few years, a couple of gentlemen-one of whom was a foreigner—visited the various lo-comotive workshops of Philadeiphia. They called at the most prominent one first, stated their wishes to look through the establishment, and made some inquiries of a specific character. They were shown through the premises in a very indifferent manner, and no special pains were taken to give them any information beyond what their own inquiries drew forth. The same results followed their visits to the several larger establishments. By some means, they were induced to call on one of a third or fourth-rate character. The owner was himself a workman, of limited means; but an the application of the stran-gers, his natural urbanity of manner prompted him not only to show all that he had, but to enter into a detailed explanation of the working of his establishment, and of the very superior manner in which he could conduct his factory, if additional facilities of capital were afferded him. The gentlemen left him, not only favorably impressed towards him, but with the feeling that he thoroughly understood his business. Within a year he was surprised with an invitation to visit St. Petersburg. The result was, his becomotive establishment was removed there bodily. It was the agent of the Czar who had called on him, in company with an American citizen. He has recently returned, having accumulated a large fortune, and still receives from his Russian workshops about a hu dred thousand dollars a year. He invests his money in real estate, and has already laid the foundation for the largest fortune of any private individual in Philadelphia; and all the result of Heating. detailed explanation of the working of his establish-

Whaleships in the Pacific Ocean. OFFICE OF THE PANAMA RAIL-ROAD COMPANY, NEW YORK, July 20, 1857.

The Panama Rail-Road Company takes this method of informing those intererted in the Whaling business, of the advantages offered by the Railroad arross the Isthmus of Panama, for the shipment of the Pacific to the United States, and for sending outfits and supplies from the United States to Panama.

The Railroad has been in regular and successful operation for more than two years, and its capacity for the transportation of every description of merchandise, including the present season, has been fully tested. The attention of several Captains of whaleships has recently been turned to the subject of shipping their oil from Panar a to New York during the present season, and the Panama Rail-Road Company has made arrangements to afford every facility which may be required for the accomplishment of this important object. A Pier, 450 feet long, has been built in the bay of Panama, to the end of which Freight Cars are run to receive cargoes from lighters or vessels lying alongside, and deliver the same alongside of vessels at Aspinwall. Vessels of from 200 to 300 tons can lie at the Pier with safety, grounding in the mud at low water.

The vessels to and from Aspinwall are fast-sailing brigs, belonging to the Rail-Road Company, and the Company is prepared to receive oil at Panama and deliver it in New York, under thorough Bills of Landing, at the rate of eight cents per gallon, if received at the Pier, and nine cents per gallon if received in the harbor from ship's tackles, charging for the capacity of the casks, without allowing for wantage. This charge covers every expense from Panama to New York, in case the oil is sent through the Superintendent or Commercial Agéni of the Panama Rail-Road Company, insurance excepted. The freights may be made payable on the Isthmus or in New York at the option of the Superintendent or Commercial Agéni of the Panama Rail-Road Company and the shipmus is four hours. Oil, during its transit across the Isthmus, will be covered with canvas, or conveyed in covered cars, and owners may be as
